To Whom it May Concern:

I write on behalf of David Harsh, hoping you'll consider allowing him to share his musical passions and abilities with your school community.

I serve as headmaster of Evangel Classical School in Marysville, Washington. David and his family have been a part of our school since 2015. As a professional musician and committed Christian, there have been a host of ways that David has brought value to ECS.

David has assisted as a volunteer with our school's music program. From substitute teaching (in emergency and long-term capacities) to helping to run vocal sectionals and more, he has been a handy person to have around our program. This and other avenues have given me a good look at David's musical abilities.

In fact - and perhaps more precisely where his services may be of interest to you - he has performed for our school during special assemblies a host of times. In fact, a daytime Christmas concert by Mr. Harsh has become something of a fixture on our school's calendar the last several years.

His concerts are always engaging and entertaining. He engages the crowds well...no matter their ages. And the variety of tools he uses (from Boomwhackers to guitar to keyboard to hammered dulcimer to voice-layering effects) help keep the attention of the audience. He also engages them through interaction, even including singalongs if they fit (e.g., Christmas carols).

His concerts are also professionally-executed. David is a relentless and thorough planner, and does a good job working with a variety of platforms and resources. He's capable of providing all of his own equipment or just bringing his guitar, and it's guaranteed to be fun and exciting.

As you can probably guess, I have seen David perform a number of times, and I've also worked with him in coordinating performances at our school, so if I can be of additional assistance, I'm glad to speak to your questions as best I'm able...for David's sake.

Sincerely,

Jonathan Sarr
